isofy expands Charleston County headquarters operations

Company's investment will create 60 new jobs

isofy, a network software and services provider, today announced it is expanding its headquarters operations in Charleston County. The company's investment will create 60 new jobs.

isofy develops network management software and provides managed network services for the commercial real estate industry. The company helps property owners and operators deliver reliable, secure internet connectivity while simplifying day-to-day network operations.

isofy is expanding its existing Charleston County headquarters, located at 2154 N. Center St. in North Charleston, which supports software development, network engineering, client support, sales and business operations for clients across the United States and internationally. The expansion will grow these teams and support continued research and development in network automation, intelligence and proactive monitoring.

Operations are already online. Individuals interested in joining the isofy team should visit the company's careers page or contact the company (careers@isofy.tech).

QUOTES

"Charleston has given us the foundation to build a technology company serving clients around the world, and our ambition is to keep extending that reach. We're advancing network automation and intelligence to help commercial real estate owners move from reacting to problems to anticipating them, while turning network data into useful operating insights. This investment in our Charleston County team will help us bring those capabilities to more properties and markets globally."
-isofy CEO Zach McNamara

"South Carolina continues to build on our reputation as a place where businesses can succeed, and isofy's expansion in Charleston County is a great example of that. We are proud to see the company creating 60 new jobs for South Carolinians and congratulate isofy on this announcement."
-Gov. Henry McMaster

"We congratulate isofy on its headquarters expansion, creating 60 new jobs. As our state continues to support businesses that call South Carolina home, we look forward to the company's increased presence and ongoing growth in Charleston County."
-Secretary of Commerce Harry M. Lightsey III

"isofy's expansion is a testament to the opportunities North Charleston offers growing technology companies. These 60 new jobs represent an investment in our community and our residents, and we welcome isofy's continued growth in our city."
-City of North Charleston Mayor Reggie Burgess

"Congratulations to isofy on expanding its presence in Charleston County. This latest investment creates new opportunities for our workforce and positions our community for long-term success in an increasingly technology-driven world."
-Charleston County Chairman Joe Boykin

"This announcement is another sign that Charleston County is emerging as a leading destination for technology and innovation. Companies are choosing to invest here because of our skilled talent pipeline, strong business climate, and commitment to supporting economic growth. We are excited to see isofy expand its footprint and contribute to the continued success of our region."

-Charleston County Economic Development Director Merle Johnson
